ABOUT THE FOURTH INTERNATIONAL WOMEN OF THE MOUNTAINS CONFERENCE

The Women of the Mountains Conference returns to the United States after its successful conference in Puno, Peru in 2012.

It brings attendees and participants from the United Nations, the Federal Government, State and Local Government, Non-profit organizations, Local businesses, Scholars and Utah Valley University students.

Hundreds of people from numerous countries will come together to share, learn, network and celebrate efforts for sustainability, women and children issues pertaining directly to those who live within mountainous regions throughout the world.

His Holiness, the Dalai Lama, reminds us, “It is clear to me that taking steps to ensure the welfare and protection of women and children, improving their prospects for health, education and economic development and encouraging women in leadership roles can only benefit them and society at large.”

Issues addressed in the conference are broadly, but not exclusively, discussed include: transmitting family values, heritage and culture, health, education, economic issues of women and children, leadership of women, human trafficking and exploitation, and sustainability issues that directly affect those living within mountain regions.

The intended outcome of the conference is to raise awareness, to mobilize support from institutions within the U.S. mountain states and global mountain entities, and to assist in the sustainable development of the mountain communities of the world, particularly as it applies to women and children.

About Us

The fourth International Women of the Mountains Conference seeks to raise awareness, to mobilize support from institutions within the U.S. mountain states and global mountain entities, and to assist in the sustainable development of the mountain communities of the world, particularly as it applies to women and children.

Successful hosting the 2015 WOMC will allow to:

1) Strengthen the State of Utah's position as the international hub promoting the gender aspect of the SMD agenda of the United Nations;
2) Implement a decision of the Orem Declaration of Mountain Women, the final document of the first international Women of the Mountains Conference in 2007 - to host a WOMC on a annual basis with alternating sites between Utah and a different mountain nations overseas.

The first International Women of the Mountains Conference took place on March 8 - 9, 2007 at Utah Valley State College in Orem, Utah. It was the first event ever in North America to promote, on regional level, the United Nations gender and sustainable mountain development agendas. Representatives from all Rocky Mountains states participated at the conference in addition to scholars from 22 mountainous nations. The Yurt behind the participants was presented by Her Excellency, Mrs. Zamira Sydykova, Ambassador of Kyrgyzstan to the USA.

The second International Women of the Mountains Conference took place on March 8 - 9, 2011 at Utah Valley State College in Orem, Utah. The Conference expanded the number of Mountain Partnership members from North America to thirteen, including Orem City and Gruppman International Violin Institute, among others. Opening Keynote Addresses were given by the Honorable Judy Martz, First Women Governor of Montana, and Christina Lowe, Miss Utah 2010, and Dr. Susan Madsen from UVU.

The third International Women of the Mountains Conference took place on June 14, 2012 in Puno, Peru to discuss pressing issues concerning mountain communities in the Andean regions of Peru and Surrounding countries aimed, in particular on strengthening regional alliances to promote gender issues; encouraging membership in the Mountain Partnership and Mountain Forum and identifying and resolving mountain women problems in particular regions of the world.

The WOM conferences have been featured in three Reports on Sustainable Mountain Development (SMD) of the United Nations Secretary General (UNSG) for promotion of the gender agenda. In the 2013 UNSG report, UVU was highlighted again for contribution to the SMD agenda, the only university in North America to do so.

2015 International Women of the Mountains Conference
Messages and Greetings

From Her Excellency, Michelle Bachelet, Executive Director of the UN Women:

9 March 2011

Dear Conference Participants,

On behalf of the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women), I am pleased to extend my warm greetings to all of you participating in the 2nd International Women of the Mountains Conference in Orem, Utah.

I offer my congratulations to Ambassador Abubacry and Dr. Butler for this follow-up to the successful first conference in 2007, and regret that I am unable to attend.

I am glad that the Conference is addressing the specific and urgent challenges of women living in mountainous regions. I am especially pleased by the Conference’s focus on women’s leadership and participation, a priority area for us at UN Women. My vision is for UN Women to be a catalyst for change—offering new energy, drawing on core ideas and values, and bringing together countries and communities in a shared endeavor.

I hope the Conference will prove a powerful platform to stimulate dialogue on the sustainable and gender-just development of mountain states, generating innovative ideas and mobilizing support through the creation of energetic partnerships.

I wish you positive discussions during the Conference, and successful cooperation on advancing empowerment for mountain women and, thereby, the broader cause of gender equality for all.

Yours sincerely,

Michelle Bachelet
Executive Director

From His Holiness, the Dalai Lama:

MESSAGE

I would like to extend my warm greetings to everyone participating in the Women of the Mountains conference taking place in Utah addressing the welfare of women and children in mountainous regions.

For many years I have tried to promote positive human values and the importance of compassion in human society, for it has always seemed to me that it is essential that we foster these qualities in our children when they are young. This is why the relationship between mothers and children is so pivotal. Nearly all of us receive our first lessons in peaceful living from our mothers, because of our need for love and to survive. From the earliest stages of our growth, we are completely dependent upon our mother’s care and it is very important for us that she expresses her love. If children do not receive proper affection, in later life they often find it hard to love others. This is one of the essential ways in which a mother’s love, in the long run, has a bearing on peace in the world.

Therefore, it is clear to me that taking steps to ensure the welfare and protection of women and children, improving their prospects for health, education and economic development and encouraging women in leadership roles can only benefit them and society at large.

My own mother, who showed me the basic value of kindness, was a woman of the mountains. Consequently I have some personal interest in the themes of your conference and happily offer you my support.

THE DALAI LAMA (SIGNED)

From Past Utah Governor Jon Huntsman, Jr.:

STATE OF UTAH

Jon M. Huntsman, Jr.
Governor

Office of the Governor
Salt Lake City, Utah
84116-2220

March 2007

To the Participants of the “Women of the Mountains” International Conference:

It is my pleasure to welcome you to our great state on the occasion of this conference. As you know, our pioneer ancestors struggled to carve a civilization out of a desert others did not want. These ancestors came from more comfortable origins and the harsh mountains and desert valleys of Utah took their toll in hunger, sickness, and death. However, in large measure because of the valiant women who fought against terrible odds, Utah flourished and grew. The elements were overcome and a great civilization and culture emerged.

The stories of deprivation and struggle among our original settlers is both heart rending and inspirational. Traditional family values, the home, and education were key to the stability of our state. The noble women who sacrificed so much brought stability, love, and refinement into our lives. They left us a legacy of great hope.

Best wishes for a successful dialog as you address issues critical to women and children in developing mountain nations throughout the world.

Sincerely,

Jon M. Huntsman, Jr.
Governor

From Utah Governor, Gary R. Herbert:

STATE OF UTAH
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH

March 8, 2011

Dear Participants of the Women of the Mountains Conference,

As Governor, it is my pleasure to welcome you to our great state and to this important conference designed to examine women and children’s issues in developing nations.

Utah enjoys a rich history of valiant, dedicated women. Pioneer women came to what would be known as Utah - a remote territory and braved harsh elements in order to establish their families in very difficult surroundings. They worked to help settle the desert and became some of the first women in the United States to vote. Their descendants continue to work on behalf of women and children around the globe.

We have much to learn from and share with women leaders from other nations. Thank you for being willing to share your experiences and expertise with those in attendance. While you are in Utah, please enjoy the unique beauty of our great state and the warm friendly spirit of our residents.

Best wishes for a memorable and successful conference.

Sincerely,

Gary R. Herbert
Governor

From Minister of Women Affairs of Afghanistan, Dr. Husn Banu Ghazanfar:

March 8, 2011

On behalf of the women of Afghanistan, I would like to send my greetings to the participants of the Second International Conference “Women of the Mountains” on March 6-9, 2011 at Utah Valley University in Orem, Utah. It is so important that conference take place at the moment when all of the humanitarian and people and women of Afghanistan in particular, celebrate centennial of the International Women's Day. Please accept my bestest congratulations on this great occasion. Unfortunately, I am unable to participate in this but I am heart and soul with each of you.

It is important for all of the women around the world to work together in advancing their rights and freedoms and improving their lives and living conditions of their families. Furthermore, it is equally if not more important when the cause of gender advancement is promoted jointly by mountain women, who are faced with many challenges on a daily basis by natural conditions such as high altitudes, remoteness, etc. Therefore, the agenda of the Conference is very timely and important for all of us, including women of Afghanistan. I expose the ideals of the Conference and feel it is important to recognize the unique and vital role that women bring to sustainable mountain development.

We, in Afghanistan are making it utmost priority to involve our women more actively in political and economic life of society, and to make their voices heard and their rights respected. A lot has to be done with regards to women’s roles and many changes will come, but only if we work in conjunction with one another, holding our hands together, learning from each other and sharing our experiences with one another as well as with women who live in other mountain regions of the world in particular.

Moreover, I appreciate very much the initiative of Utah Valley University in hosting the Conference — a second time after the success of the first one in 2007, when more than 100 officials of international organizations and representatives from more than 25 nations attended the First Conference in 2007 “Women of the Mountains” on mountain development and women issues gathered together and adopted the First Declaration of the Conference in 2007 “Declaration of the Conference on Women’s Mountain”. It is now one of the documents for international community, and the United Nations, which defines major priorities and goals for everybody to work together in improvement of living conditions of global mountain women and communities.

I am sure that the Second Conference “Women of the Mountains” will be a success and it will help to facilitate news ties on a growing level between the women of United States and many mountain nation of the developing world, including the country Afghanistan.

With you success in your conference.

Sincerely,

Dr. Husn Banu Ghazanfar
